Princess Elizabeth Playground, SA

IMAGINARY PLAY AT IT'S BEST

The renewal of an Adelaide Playground sees children transported to an imaginary world where knights and princesses play a key role.

"The design of Princess Elizabeth Play Space allows for a diverse range of activities for children of all ages and encourages activity-based learning through play structures as well as opportunities for nature play.

Children using the space have described it as 'the bomb', which is testament to its design and accessibility."

The Princess Elizabeth Playground and surrounding oval area is located in the Parklands, along South Terrace in Adelaide: this space is a popular recreation area, especially for local school students and residents of the south eastern side of the City.

The City of Adelaide developed an innovative design concept for the renewal of Princess Elizabeth Playground, in consultation with the community.

The City wanted to build a playground in keeping with the historical background of the playground that is relevant to its current use. "Princess Elizabeth Playground was established from unexpended funds arising from the 1927 visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of York. The Playground was named in honour of the Princess..."

The update of the playground provided the perfect opportunity for a medieval castle tower from Proludic! Using its unique Grafic Games concept, Proludic has provided a giant tower with a medieval decorative finish.

The Medieval theme brings to life a period of history that fascinates children and adults alike. Children are transported into a wonderful imaginary land where knights and princesses play the key roles.

DYNAMO'S DIZIGOTIC OFFERS EXCITING CLIMBING CHALLENGES ON SEVERAL LEVELS.

The play equipment is transformed into a castle, complete with shields, arrow slits, stone walls and turrets. The decorative aspect is further enhanced with banners, coats of arms and flags flying from the turrets. Henry the Horse Springer in Medieval Graphics has been installed close to the tower to match the playground theme.

Older children enjoy a challenging net climber with Dynamo's innovative Dizigotic which offers
